Mark Hayden is a litigation associate in the firm's New York office. His practice focuses on intellectual property litigation with a particular emphasis on representing clients in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries. Mark is also registered to practice before the US Patent and Trademark Office. He has significant experience litigating under the Hatch-Waxman Act and has played key roles in fact and expert discovery, depositions, and trial.

Before attending law school, Mark worked in a research laboratory at Brigham and Women's Hospital/Harvard Medical School focused on using next generation sequencing (NGS) technologies to elucidate the molecular and genetic underpinnings of cancers, gynecological diseases, and human developmental disorders.

In addition to his commercial work, Mark provides pro bono services to various clients, including trademark matters, criminal appeals, and advocacy work.
