O'Melveny represented WeWork in the sale of its subsidiary Meetup, this article reported.

"O'Melveny represented WeWork in the sale of its subsidiary, Meetup, one of the world's first social media platforms and the only one dedicated to groups that meet in-person or online during times of crisis," the publication wrote.

"The Silicon Valley-based O'Melveny deal team was led by counsel Melissa Wright and Emerging Technologies Group chair David Makarechian. Also advising on the deal were O'Melveny partner Robert Fisher (on tax matters), partner Eric Amdursky (on labor and employment matters), counsel Tom Oslovar (on Intellectual Property matters), special counsel Scott Pink (on data security and privacy matters), and senior counsel Warren Fox (on employee benefits matters). AJ Talt served as lead associate on the deal."
