O'Melveny chair Brad Butwin has been reelected to lead the firm for a third term, extending his tenure until 2025, this article reported.

In a show of support, the partnership selected Butwin to continue as chair more than eight months before the start of his next term, The Deal reported. "While the global economy remains challenged, we look forward to helping our clients forge ahead toward a promising future," Butwin said in a statement.
