The Recorder: Women Leaders in Tech Law 2018: Heather Meeker, O'Melveny & Myers

November 06, 2018

The Recorder named partner Heather Meeker to its distinguished list of "Women Leaders in Tech Law 2018." As part of her Q&A profile, Meeker outlined her career and experience working with technology clients.

Asked for one way she has had to change her thinking toward practicing law to succeed with tech industry clients, Meeker responded that she had to "learn that I am not a legal scholar, I am a problem-solver and service provider." She continues: "Every year my practice has to become more practical and useful to clients."

Meeker is an intellectual property lawyer who specializes in technology transactions, open source software licensing, and technology and IP issues in mergers and acquisitions. She has received national and international recognition for her leadership in the intellectual property field.
