Overview

Automotive companies and industry investors around the world choose to work with O'Melveny's experienced team on their most critical business and legal matters—from executing billion-dollar-plus financings and innovative M&A deals to successfully litigating cases brought in courts across the United States.

The breadth and impact of our work in high-profile litigation is considerable; we have acted as national class action counsel for major companies in large putative class actions with critically high stakes, and have defended companies against closely watched consumer class actions, many involving consumer fraud and false advertising claims. On appeal, we have obtained reversals in our clients' favor.

Our team also has an impressive track record helping automotive companies raise billions in capital in public and private securities offerings, and negotiating and structuring tactical mergers, acquisitions and sales that create value and advance important strategies.

Accolades
