

In the News

Associated Press: California Eyes Risk Pool as it Struggles with Costly Fires

April 3, 2019

RELATED PRACTICES

Environmental

The destructive California wildfires of 2017 and 2018 have made it difficult for many in fire-prone areas to get or afford insurance, prompting calls for a catastrophe fund worth between $15 and $30 billion. Governor Gavin Newsom is set to announce by mid-April proposals to mitigate liability for the state's most vulnerable, which he developed with counsel from O'Melveny.

To read the full article, click here.