O'Melveny & Myers partner and chair of the Firm's Supreme Court and Appellate Practice Jonathan Hacker authored the article "The U.S. Supreme Court's Latest Term Was a Victory for Democracy," in the July 12, 2012, edition of Corporate Counsel. The article was the latest in a series of columns from O'Melveny lawyers, examining the intersections of the political and legal worlds in the run-up to Election Day 2012. In the article, Hacker explained how recent Supreme Court decisions on healthcare and immigration kept the court out of political controversies, leaving the final decisions on these matters to the political process and national policy makers.

Hacker resides in O'Melveny's Washington, DC office.
