O'Melveny & Myers counsel David Almeling recently authored an article for Law360 that discusses the US government's heightened focus on the threats posed by trade secret theft and efforts to address these threats through new legislation. In "Recent Trade Secret Reform -- And What Else Should Change," published on September 23, 2013, Almeling examines the recent changes to trade secret law and recommends additional changes.

Almeling is a member of the Intellectual Property and Technology group within O'Melveny's Litigation Department, and resides in the Firm's San Francisco office.
