Daily Journal's November 29, 2012, article "Arbitration Trumps State Policy Again in High Court Decision," discussed a recent US Supreme Court decision that reinforced arbitration agreements in disputes involving noncompete clauses. O'Melveny & Myers Eric Amdursky said in the article that the decision did not address provisional injunctive relief. "The decision begs the question of whether the exception under the [Federal Arbitration Act] allows a party to go into court to prevent interim harm," he said.
