Jeff Kohn, managing partner of O'Melveny's New York office, and his wife Martha were featured in the Spring 2017 edition of Advance, a Cornell University alumni publication, for their work with Hope's Door, a shelter devoted to victims of domestic violence in Westchester County, New York.

The article notes that Kohn serves as pro bono counsel for the organization. He told the publication that other colleagues at O'Melveny "have also embraced the mission at Hope's Door," and spend two days each year gardening at the shelter.

New York Regional Head of Litigation, Kohn represents clients in a broad range of employment and labor law disputes. His clients span a variety of industries, including sports, entertainment and media, financial services, airlines, pharmaceuticals, professional services, and transportation, among others.
