O'Melveny & Myers LLP Chair Bradley Butwin was quoted in the October 11, 2012, Legal Week article "Quick Change," which discussed the recent trend of private practice lawyers moving to in-house counsel positions, and the different skill sets necessary for each role.

"We believe these types of arrangements are win-win for us and our clients. Some of our firm's best lawyers have been tapped for important in-house positions, and some have returned to the firm after serving in these roles - both of which underscore the exceptional skills and leadership abilities of these attorneys," stated Butwin.
