Global Competition Review's article "New York's Competition Bar," published in the November 2013 issue, looks at "the best antitrust practices in the city." "There is plenty of litigation work going on at O'Melveny & Myers," the publication observed, noting that Andrew Frackman, Mark Racanelli and other partners "have been busy handling both the civil and criminal side of antitrust matters." The article notes several high-profile cases and investigations handled by the Firm for clients such as US Airways, CapitalOne, and Honeywell.
