O'Melveny partner Greta Lichtenbaum has been named one of the "25 most respected sanctions lawyers" practicing in the DC area by Global Investigations Review. The publication spent several months surveying dozens of practitioners, asking them which individual lawyers they would trust to represent them in a hypothetical sanctions case and why. In addition to the survey, they used publicly available information to determine which attorneys were working on the most significant cases. "Greta Lichtenbaum holds an enviable reputation among the Washington, DC sanctions bar," the editors wrote. "Over the course of 15 years at O'Melveny & Myers, Lichtenbaum has acted for an oilfield services company and for engineering companies in sanctions-related matters. Lichtenbaum also specializes in advising companies on US export laws and the FCPA."
