

In the News

Inside Cybersecurity: The Federal Embrace of Tough Supply-Chain Regulation Seems Like a Done Deal

December 4, 2019

RELATED PROFESSIONALS

John Dermody

Washington, DC
D: +1-202-383-5306

RELATED PRACTICES

Data Security & Privacy

O'Melveny counsel John Dermody was quoted in this article about a trend toward the stricter regulation of supply-chain cybersecurity. The Commerce and Defense departments' proposed rule on supply-chain security will come with heavy penalties for failure to comply, as the article reported. "Issuing the guidance as an NPRM and specifically seeking comment on a number of critical areas suggests that Commerce is open to entertaining recommendations and critiques from the private sector," O'Melveny counsel John Dermody commented in regards to the proposed rule change.