May 3, 2012

O'Melveny & Myers LLP London managing partner Solomon Wifa contributed a chapter to the recently published Private Equity Compensation and Incentives, an in-depth legal and technical guide published by Private Equity International. The publication is intended as a practical guide for general partners, limited partners, and portfolio-company management. Wifa's chapter, "The Impact of Europe's AIFM Directive on Private Equity Compensation," provides an overview of the scope and impact of the Alternative Investment Fund Managers Directive (AIFMD) on private equity compensation and discusses some of the practical implications of the directive's requirements on private equity firms.
