

Alerts & Publications

The Cramdown Podcast: Lender On Lender Priming

December 3, 2020

KEY CONTACTS

Nancy Mitchell

New York
D: +1-212-326-2127

John J. Rapisardi

New York
D: +1-212-326-2063

Daniel S. Shamah

New York
D: +1-212-326-2138

Jennifer Taylor

San Francisco
D: +1-415-984-8922

A growing number of non-pro rata and priming transactions in the financial markets are pitting corporate lenders against each other. In Episode 4 of The Cramdown, O'Melveny partners Daniel Shamah and Jennifer Taylor join hosts Nancy Mitchell and John Rapisardi to discuss the practice of priming, its permissibility under existing law, and potential actions lenders can take to try and attack these transactions.

Providing timely insights for borrowers and lenders at a time of heightened economic uncertainty, The Cramdown podcast analyzes the latest industry and legal trends in today's distressed economy. Restructuring practice chair John Rapisardi and partner Nancy Mitchell welcome guests to share practical insights on the many challenges affecting businesses and investors during economic disruptions.

Listen to the fourth episode of The Cramdown below and subscribe to hear future installments on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, Stitcher, and SoundCloud.

The Cramdown Podcast by O'Melveny & Myers LLP
Episode 4: Lender On Lender Priming

SOUNDCLOUD
Share

▶ 138

Cookie policy

The Cramdown Podcast by O'Melveny & Myers LLP · Episode 4: Lender On Lender Violence