

In the News

O'Melveny's Zhang Quoted in Dow Jones Article on Private Equity Regulation in China

July 10, 2013

O'Melveny & Myers counsel Xuan Zhang was quoted in a July 9, 2013, Dow Jones article, titled "China's CSRC May Soon Be Crowned the Country's Private Equity Regulator." The piece describes the Chinese State Commission Office's recent confirmation that the China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC) will be responsible for regulating private equity funds in the country going forward. The report notes Zhang's observations that the market's reaction to this announcement has been "muted" thus far, and "[p]rivate equity players are actually waiting for CSRC to come out with new rules."

Zhang is a member of O'Melveny's Investment Funds Practice, and resides in the Firm's Beijing office.